IMMEDIATE RELEASE

<EMPLOYEE NAME> RECEIVES CERTIFIED
ACCOUNT EXECUTIVE IN FACTORING DESIGNATION

<CITY, STATE>, <DATE>: <COMPANY NAME> announced that <INDIVIDUAL'S NAME> has earned the Certified Account Executive in Factoring designation authorized by the International Factoring Association (IFA).

To receive the designation, applicants must have a minimum of two years' experience in the commercial finance industry and pass a comprehensive 100 question exam. The IFA Account Executive Certification exam measures a candidate's competency and skill in the factoring profession. Those competencies and skills were determined through a rigorous development process that involved the participation of over a dozen industry professionals nationwide. The IFA employed a professional credentialing development corporation to verify that the development complied with all testing and credentialing requirements.

"We're very proud of <INDIVIDUAL>," said <COMPANY SPOKESPERSON>. "Earning this certification is not easy, and offers our clients an extra level of assurance regarding his/her skill and knowledge."

Passing this test demonstrates that the individual possess a basic level of competency among the subjects included in the exam. Testing is held in a secure testing facility. There are no academic qualifications required but each candidate must have a minimum of two years of job-related experience, adhere to the IFA's code of ethics and receive a passing grade.

The IFA is the leading provider of training for the factoring industry and thousands of factoring and secured lending professionals have taken advantage of their instructor-led training programs and teleconferences since the IFA was founded in 1999.
